Argentine Terrorists Attack New Targets

Leftist terrorists in Argentina are again attacking US and other foreign interests. The kidnaping of the honorary US consul in Cordoba last night followed closely a series of bombings of US and European businesses in Rosario. The consul, a retired US businessman, has represented US interests in Cordoba since the official US mission there was closed last spring, after a USIS officer was kidnaped. 3.5(c)

For a few months, the terrorists avoided foreign targets, concentrating instead on killing police and Peronist labor leaders. They probably hope violence against foreigners will divert government counterguerrilla operations and focus international attention on the terrorists' struggle against President Peron.
